Abstract

For optimizing couplings used until now, the invention provides an arrangement (10) for a coupling of electromagnetic signals from a coaxial cable into a hollow conductor (14), in which an exciter pin (20) is continued in the hollow conductor from a rear wall (18) of the hollow conductor (14) and is electrically conductively connected with a side wall (24) of the hollow conductor (14).

10

5

(Fig. 3)